TRIBUTE TO MCKINLEY.

Bishop Andrews' Funeral Address at Washington City over McKinley.

"A Man of Incorruptible Personal and Political Integrity Was He."

BELIEVED IN AND LIVED FOR GOD.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Bishop Andrews delivered the funeral oration over the body of William McKinley in the Capitol today. He said:

"Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord, who of his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope of the resurrection of Christ from the dead, to an inheritance uncorruptible, undefiled and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for us who are now by the power of God through faith unto salvation, ready to be revealed in the last time.

"The services for the dead are tiny and almost of necessity services of religion and immortal hope. In the presence of the shroud and the coffin and the narrow home questions concerning intellectual quality, concerning public station, concerning great achievements, sink into comparative significance, and questions concerning character and man's relation to the Lord and giver of life, even the life eternal, emerge to our view and impress themselves upon us.

"Character abides. We bring nothing into this world; we can carry nothing out. We ourselves depart; with all the accumulations of tendency and habit and quality which the years have given to us. We ask, therefore, even at the grave of the illustrious, not altogether what great achievement they have performed and how they have outdone themselves to the memory and affection of respect of the world, but chiefly of what sort they were; what the interior nature of the man was; what were his affections. Were they with the good, the truth, the noble? What his relation to the infinite Lord of the universe, and to the compassionate Saviour of mankind; what his fitness for that great hereafter to which he has passed.

"And such great questions come to us with moment, even to the bier of those whom we profoundly respect and adore, and whom we tenderly love. In the years to come, the days and months that lie immediately before us will give full utterance as to the high station and great achievement of the illustrious man whom we mourn today. We shall not touch them today. The nation already has broken out in its grief and poured its tears, and is still pouring them, over the loss of a beloved man. It is well. But we ask this morning of what sort this man was, so that we may perhaps, knowing the moral and spiritual life that is past, be able to shape the far-withdrawing future; I think we must all concede that nature and training, and reverently be said, the inspiration of the Almighty, conspired to form a man admirable in his moral temper and aims.

WE WERE MINUTELY GIFTED. "We none of us, can doubt, I think, that even by nature he was eminently gifted. The kindly, calm and equitable temperament; the kindly and generous heart; the love of justice and right, and the tendency toward faith and loyalty to unseen powers and authorities; these things must have been with him from his childhood, from his infancy, but upon them superadded the training for which he was always tenderly thankful, and of which even this great nation, from sea to sea, can justly be proud.

"It was a humble home in which he was born. Narrow conditions were around him, but faith in God had lifted that lowly roof according to the statement of some great writer, up to the very heavens, and permitted its inmates to behold the things eternal, immortal and divine; and he came under that training.

"It is a beautiful thing that to the end of his life he bent reverently before that mother whose example and teaching and prayer had so fashioned his mind and all his aims. The school came but briefly, and then came to him the church with a ministrations power. He accepted of the truth which it taught. He believed in God and in Jesus Christ, through God was revealed. He accepted the divine law of the Scripture: he based his hope on Jesus Christ, the appointed and only redeemer of men; and the church began its operation upon his character at an early period of his life, continued even to its close, to mold him. He waited attentively upon its ministrations.

BEAUTIFUL CHRISTIAN LIFE.

"He gladly perished with his brethren of the symbols of mysterious passion and redeeming love of the Lord Jesus Christ. He was helpful in all of those immediate and activities; and from the church to the close of his life, he received inspiration that lifted him above much of the trouble and weakness incident to our human nature, and blessings be to God, may we say, in the last and final hour, they enabled him confidently, tenderly to say, 'It is his will, not ours, that will be done.'

"Such influences gave to William McKinley. And what was he? A man of incorruptible personal and political integrity.

"No stain was upon his escutcheon; no syllable of suspicion that I ever heard was whispered against his character. He walked in perfect and noble self-control. Beyond that this man had somehow wrought in him—I suppose upon the foundations of a very happily constructed nature—a great and generous love for his fellowmen. He believed in men. He had himself been brought up among the common people. He knew their labors, struggles, necessities. He loved them; but I think beyond that it was to the church and its teachings concerning the fatherhood of God and universal brotherhood of man that he was indebted for that habit of kindness, for that generosity of spirit, that was wrought into his very substance and became him so that though he was of all men most courteous, no one ever supposed, but that he was of the heart. It was spontaneous, unaffected, kindly, attractive, in a most distinct degree.

"When he was in the narrow circle of those to whom he was personally attached, I think he was also in the greatness of his comprehensive love toward the race of which he was part. If any man had been lifted up to take into his purview and desire to help all races and conditions of men, all the nationalities beside his own, it was this man.

"Shall I speak a word next of that which I will hardly advert to? The tenderness of that domestic love which has so often been commented upon? I pass it with only that word. I take it that no words can set forth fully the unfaltering kindness and carefulness and unending love which belonged to this great man.

"And he was a man who believed in right, who had a profound conviction that the courses of this world must be ordered in accordance with everlasting righteousness, or this world's highest point of good will never be reached; that no nation can expect such life except as it conforms to the eternal laws of the infinite Lord and pass itself in individual and collective activity according to that divine will. It was deeply ingrained in him that righteousness was the perfection of man and of any people. Simply belonging to him. I need not dwell upon it, and I close the statement of these qualities by saying that underlying all and over-reaching all and penetrating all there was a profound loyalty to guard the great King of the universe, the author of all good, the eternal hope of all that trust in him.

"And now, may I further say that it seemed to me that to whatever we may attribute all the illustriousness of this man, all the greatness of his achievements, whatever of that we may attribute to his intellectual character and quality, whatever of it we may attribute to the patient and thorough study which he gave to the various questions thrust upon him for attention, for all his successes as a politician, as a statesman, as a man of this great country, those successes were largely due to the moral qualities of which I have spoken. They drew to him the hearts of men everywhere, and particularly of those who best know him. They called to his side helpers in every exigency of his career, so that when his future at one time was likely to have been imperiled and utterly ruined by his financial condition, they who had resources, for the sake of helping a man who had in him such qualities, came to his aid and set him on the high road of additional and larger successes. His high qualities drew to him the good will of his associates in political life in an eminent degree. They believed in him. Let his kindness, confided in his honesty and in his honor. His qualities were associated with him in kindly relations those who were his political opponents. They made it possible for him to enter that land with which he was one of the soldiers of the Union; had been, in some sort, at war, and to draw closer the tie that was to bind all the parts in one firm and indissoluble union.

"If there is a personal immortality before him let us also rejoice that there is an immortality and memory in the hearts of a large and ever-growing people, who through the ages to come, the generations that are yet to be, will look back upon the life, upon its nobility and purity and service to humanity and thank God for it. The years draw on when his name shall be counted among the illustrious of the earth. William of Orange is not dead. Cromwell is not dead. Washington lives in the hearts and lives of his countrymen. Lincoln, with his infinite sorrow, lives to teach us and lead us on. And McKinley shall summon all statesmen and all his countrymen to live, loving, sober, active and impartial benevolence."

State Free From Smallpox.

For the first time in four years Kentucky is rid of smallpox. Dr. J. N. McCormack, Secretary of the State Board of Health, who was at the Galt House last night said that there was only one case in the entire State and that there was no danger of its spreading. He said the State had not been so free of the disease in four years, and he was of the opinion that another outbreak was unlikely, so thoroughly had the State been vaccinated. At one time last winter the smallpox situation in certain sections of the State was alarming, and it was feared that whole cities and counties would have to be quarantined to prevent a spread. It became necessary to quarantine one county for a short time, but the various County Boards of Health ordered a thorough vaccination and the disease was eradicated.—Courier Journal.

THE TRUST.

I heard the poor man thus complain Of poverty and want; I saw him and his weary wife, His children pale and gaunt; He'd heard the tariff question And free trade the tariff question, But what restores the poor man most Is working for the trust.

I heard the widow's plaintive sigh, Of hunger and distress While tolling for her daily bread And by the rich oppressed. She could maintain her children once, But now 'tis true she must Give a part of her hard earnings To help maintain the trust.

I met the feeble man of age, Bowed beneath the weight of years, Said he: "I'm growing tired of life, It's poverty and care."

There's nothing more that I may reach The mansions of the just Where the oppressor ne'er can come To rob me with the trust.

Upon the vile extortioner There will remain a curse. It seems that in these latter days, They're waiting worse and worse, And when they get to their own place, To spite their last.

They will proceed at once to form A giant splurge trust. J. T. JONES.

Trial of Colozog.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Crowds flocked to the County Court today long before Judge Henry assumed the bench, expecting that Leon F. Colozog would be arraigned to plead to the indictment charging murder in the first degree in shooting President McKinley. They waited in vain, as nothing was done during the morning session of court.

District Attorney Peasey to pay $500 to Leon Lewis and Robert C. Titus, former Supreme Court Justices, formal notices of the assignments of Judge Emery yesterday, as counsel to defend the murderer. The notice was served personally upon ex-Judge Lewis at his office, but at Judge Titus' office it was stated that he was in Milwaukee.

Albert Moot, President of the Erie Bar Association, called upon Judge Lewis to-day, and urged him to accept the assignment as counsel to defend Colozog. Mr. Moot also sent to Judge Titus a lengthy telegram urging him to accept. At noon to-day Judge Lewis said:

"I will determine at 2 o'clock this afternoon whether or not to accept the assignment. I will have a meeting with the prisoner in the jail at that hour, and will then determine my course in the matter. The decision of Judge Titus will not necessarily govern me in reaching a determination."

Justice Lewis, for the prisoner, has entered a plea of not guilty, reserving the right to withdraw that plea. Colozog again refused to plead. The trial of the case has been set for Monday next.

From every section of the State Democratic prospects in the local contests are flattering.

All the candidates for United States Senate spoke in the first district last Monday. It begins to look like it's the field against McKinley.

The Little German Reform Church, Washington, the one in which President Roosevelt will worship, only seats one hundred and fifty persons.

In response to a proclamation issued by President Roosevelt memorial services were held in nearly every town and city in the nation last Thursday.

Organized labor stands but little showing against combined capital. The great steel strike has been decided in favor of the labor and the mills have again started.

President McKinley carried $150,000 insurance on his life, and evidently calculated that he would live many years, as he had changed a short time ago, a $30,000 policy, ordinary life, to an endowment.

It is but a few weeks until the voters of this county will select officers for the next four years, and so far we know "everything" is quiet along the paterfamilias. The candidates are making a quiet hunt.

Mr. Roosevelt says he will be the President of the whole people of the United States, and that he has no particular section over another. The statement is like Melvin White's word hauling, if he does it's all right.

There will be no change in the Cabinet, the President having invited all to remain and gaining the consent of each member. It may be that some time later that Secretary Hay will tender his resignation.

In the last twenty years over 8,000 lynchings have taken place in the United States. Kentucky was not as industrious as Texas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia, Arkansas and Alabama, he being given the eighth place.

IN MEMORIAM

Citizens of Columbia Meet and Grieve

Expressions of Their Sorrow on Account of the Death of President McKinley.

RESOLUTIONS OF SYMPATHY.

At a mass meeting of citizens of Adair county, held at the court-house, in Columbia on Thursday, the 19th inst., at 2:30 o'clock—Judge W. W. Jones was called to Chair and N. M. Tatt was elected Secretary.

After music and the reading of a chapter from the Bible by Rev. T. F. Walton, Rev. W. P. Oordon, of the Methodist church, led in prayer.

A committee was then appointed to prepare and present resolutions expressive of the sense of the meeting. H. C. Baker, James Garfield, Jesse L. Marshall, F. R. Winfrey and Rollin Hart, were appointed on the committee, and reported the following:

Resolved, That we share in the universal sorrow which is felt at the death of President William McKinley. No man in public or private life in our country has been more highly esteemed and beloved by all the people. For many years in official position, and in times of intense political excitement, his great name for purity of life, for integrity of purpose, for devotion to country was ever above and beyond the reach of suspicion. His untimely death by the assassin's bullet comes to his country not only as a National, but as personal loss. As soldier, statesman, husband, son and as a pure minded, great hearted christian gentleman, he represented and personified the highest type of our best American citizenship.

2d. Ours is a government of law, and all should bow to its behests in unquestioning obedience. We denounce the fiendish act of the assassin, and we denounce all organizations in which doctrines are taught which lead to such crimes—Legislation should be framed, if possible, to prevent their recurrence. It is a reproach to our civilization that within the past fifty years, three of our Presidents have been shot down in cold blood merely because they represented the majesty of law.

H. C. BAKER,
JAMES GARFIELD,
JESSE L. MARSHALL,
F. R. WINFREY,
ROLLIN HART.

Com. Speeches were made by Mr. Baker, Gov. Hindman, Judge Garnett and Mr. Hart appropriate to the occasion, after which the resolutions were unanimously adopted.

The meeting then closed with benediction by Rev. T. F. Walton.

A Washington correspondent to the Daily Advocate, thus writes, "Senator Hanna, a warm personal friend of McKinley, was also his closest political friend, and although Senator Hanna asks fewer political favors than any man in the Senate, he and his friends and associates were naturally regarded as those most in sympathy with the President and those most entitled to his confidence and good will—just as Manning and Whitney stood nearest President Cleveland. Now the scene shifts. Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, will probably be to Roosevelt in some measure what Senator Hanna was to President McKinley. In fact, the gossip has already stated him as the successor to Secretary Hay. Others, also, who have not been so frequently seen at the White House will now become more familiar there. But Senator Hanna is by no means to be considered completely unhorsed as a political power. He himself has a personal following which will be intensely loyal, and then he is Chairman of the National Republican Committee, which is widely influential in practical politics."

President Roosevelt has assured the great financial interests of the country that no change in the policies of his predecessor will be made. This is worth millions to the gamblers in stocks and bonds, but it does not bring meat and bread to the masses.

Just as certain as there is a God there is going to be a general hanging in this country and the entertainment will not come too soon. Twenty anarchists are now standing guard over a publication at Spring Valley, Ill., that expressed joy over the assassination of President McKinley. In New York the same expression is being made nightly. In fact, the anarchists in that city meet in saloons by the hundreds and dance the "cann cann" so elated are they over the death of the ruler of our country.

Eld. C. C. Oline, of the Christian church, who is well-known in Columbia, has evidently torn his trousers. In a sermon at Nashville, last Sunday, he stated that the assassination of the President was the will of God. He took the position that God was jealous for the poor, and that McKinley was a crusher. Men who utter such sentiments are not friends to this government, and should be caressed and dealt with as anarchists.

There is no such thing as an independent newspaper. If one is attempted to be published and its editor is a Republican it will invariably lean to that side the writer belongs and if the editor is a Democrat the same statement applies. What is the result? Neither party has any respect upon the publication, and it is regarded by the public generally to be the smallest potato in the smallest patch upon the thickest ground in Ireland.

In the assassination, death and burial of the late President, Wm. McKinley, the American people's sympathy was so fully expressed as to demonstrate that we are all one in love of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, that in times of trouble we all mourn and in time of peril we stand as one. No sectionalism, no party creed withold any true American from a free and vigorous denunciation of murder.

If President Roosevelt should die, the Secretary of State would become President. After that, the order of succession would be as follows: Secretary of Treasury, Secretary of War, Attorney General, Post Master General, Secretary of Navy, Secretary of the Interior, Secretary of Agriculture is not eligible, as no such office was in existence when the law of succession was enacted.

The last and rites over the remains of President McKinley were witnessed by over one hundred thousand people. The body was placed in a receiving vault at the deceased old home, Canton, Ohio, last Thursday at sun-set, and it is being strictly guarded by soldiers. Mrs. McKinley is prostrated and is very nervous and weak, but her physicians think she will survive the shock.

The trial of Czolgosz for murdering the late President McKinley, was set for last Monday. It is hoped that it will be speedily brought to an end. It goes without saying what the verdict will be.

Mrs. McKinley is improving and drives out every day or two. Sunday she was driven to the cemetery and viewed the latest floral tribute sent over by the Czar of Russia.

PELLEYTON.

Several from this place attended court at Columbia Monday week. Mr. J. A. Fesse returned home Saturday after a week's visit here. Wheat threshing is the order of the day.

Mrs. Annie B. Ellis, Jas. L. Pelley and Wesley Ellis have all recovered from typhoid fever.

J. W. Beard left this week for Louisville to spend two or three weeks.

On the morning of August 28, 1901, the death Angel visited the home of J. W. Ellis, and claimed as his victim his son, J. P. Ellis, familiarly known as "Toke," while in the prime of life and vigor of his days. Seemingly he had such a bright future before him, but this sun has gone down while yet it is day.

Toke was taken from us suddenly, our stricken hearts can hardly realize that he is numbered with the dead. To be so suddenly taken from our arms, and to leave behind him a family in need of his benevolent presence, there is none who would not, with sympathetic hearts of friends, offer a monetary relief in their time of trouble.

When the trial of life is ended, and we are used by one called upon to cross the dark river of death, may we be welcomed by those who are nearest and dearest to us on earth.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After thirty Years of Suffering.

"I suffered for thirty years with chronic diarrhoea and I thought I was past being cured," says J. S. Holloway, of French Camp, Miss. "I had spent so much time and money and suffered so much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of the diarrhoea that I could do no kind of labor, could not even travel, but by accident was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be reached of all who suffer as I have."

For sale by M. Craven.
